More money

Chamber asks for support from members, politicians

by Andy Holloway

Last year was a time of "challenges and changes" for the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, outgoing president Rhonda Elstone told members at last Wednesday's annual meeting.

Elstone said the board had to make do last year with fewer paid staff, less money and the amalgamation of the county's economic development office.

She added that the chamber has to deal with a large diverse area which means most decisions will always leave some people out in the cold.

Elstone said people who say the chamber should be self-sufficient do not realize how the organization operates. She said most chambers act as lobby groups while Haliburton's takes on more of a marketing role. The board could be self-sufficient, she said, but that would mean it could no longer have an information centre, attend shows in Toronto or produce ads or lure pieces.

She said the board needs more money to do its job properly. This funding should be generated through increased memberships and by pressuring politicians to pay up.

The board's auditor Dawson Gray reported that the board had a surplus of almost $23,000 for the year ending March 31, 1992 compared to a $577 surplus the previous year. However, to accomplish this the board had to cut its expenses in half

Board turns money down

by Andy Holloway

It is not often a group turns away government funds, but that is exactly what the Haliburton County Board of Education did at their last meeting.

The Ministry of Education is offering at total of $50 million in 1994 capital grants to school boards for the creation of counselling facilities on school property.

In a recorded vote on September 22, seven trustees voted against dipping into the provincial funds while six voted for the idea.

It was proposed at the meeting that the board in partnership with community social agencies submit a funding proposal for the creation of a 2,000 square foot counselling facility. Only agencies whose mandate provides services for children and families are eligible for funding. The government would have fully funded such a facility if it were approved.

Education director Brad Saunders says the trustees turned down the proposal for several reasons, the main one being the children's safety.

"I think the major reason was the concern that would the presence of a counselling facility attract other adults into the school at a time when we're very concerned about the safety of our children," says Saunders.

"Right now the parents of Archie Stouffer feel that once their children go there they are safe. It was something that the trustees felt was very important and they didn't want to take the risk of compromising that safety."

Trustees voting against the motion were: Lloyd Griffiths, Cheryl Murdoch, Wayne Wood, Wally Bunn, Elsa May, Nancy Dunford and Leonard Salvatori.

Voting for the motion were: Leroy Eager, Tim Casey, John Munro, Wendy Ladurantaye, Craig Petit and Mary Ann Wilson.

John MacLeod: Toronto is where he lives, but Haliburton is where he'd like to make his home

Jazzing it up

A chance to play at 'home'

Choosing between two loves can be agonizing, but every once in a while you can have your cake and eat it too.

For John MacLeod, October 16 will be one of those rare occasions when he can enjoy the love of his art in the community he would like to call home.

MacLeod plays trumpet in the Mike Murley Quartet, a Toronto-based jazz group which will be performing in a fundraising concert at the Haliburton Legion.

MacLeod was born and raised in Toronto, but his roots are in Haliburton County. Ever since his childhood, MacLeod has been coming to the county for vacations at his parents' cottage on Horseshoe Lake. His parents eventually bought acreage in Blairhampton and retired here, selling their home to their son.

Although he was born and raised in Toronto, MacLeod says the memories of his youth are based in the highlands. "My childhood is based here more so than in the city," he says. "I feel a strong connection here, that's why I'm so glad to be playing in Haliburton."

Eventually, MacLeod hopes to make Haliburton his home. However, the reality of building a career as a jazz musician has made that impossible. The last jazz concert here was in 1978 when the Rotary club sponsored a jazz festival at the Minden Community centre.

Devolin wins Reform Party post

Winning the right to represent the local Reform party will mean a great deal of work for Barry Devolin over the next few weeks.

Devolin, one of the key organizers of the Victoria-Haliburton Reform party riding association, received support from his fellow party members September 28 when he was chosen as the Reform candidate for the next federal election. He was elected at the association's nomination meeting at the Lindsay Armouries Monday. And by Tuesday he was setting out an agenda of activities that will keep him busy through to the end of October.

Although there is no federal election in the near future, Devolin's nomination comes in the midst of the campaigning for the country's referendum on the constitution.

"I'm hot on the referendum trail," the Haliburton resident told The Times Tuesday. Preparation work for a federal election have been put on hold until after the referendum.

In regards to the referendum, Devolin says he will be trying to find ways of providing information to the public about the agreement. A public forum on the referendum is being planned for October 7 in Haliburton where Devolin will express his thoughts on the issue. He is also preparing his argument in opposition to the constitution to be published next week in The Times.

In terms of party business, Devolin says he will be attending a three-day assembly in Winnipeg at the end of the because revenues dropped $70,000 from the previous year.

The chamber received $41,000 from the county last year, a drop of $35,000 from 1991 although the chamber did receive $52,000 for this year. Part of that decrease was recovered with grants from Dysart and Stanhope townships and revenues from the biannual circus.

The board spent just $91,000 last year, down from $185,000 the year before. The largest cutbacks were made in wages, advertising and in producing publications.

Haliburton County Reeve George Simmons responded to the call for more money by praising the chamber for its frugality. Praise, however, was all the warden was prepared to bestow on the chamber.

Simmons said there will be even more pressure on the county to tighten its belt in the coming year. However, he did offer a glimmer of hope when he said "We're starting back and starting slow."

Secretary Dennis Casey said the chamber is making do with far less than its counterpart in Muskoka. Casey said the Muskoka Tourism Board gets $250,000 from the area and another $250,000 in donations from area businesses.

While admitting Muskoka's tax base is larger than Haliburton's, he said the chamber needs more money to compete or it will fall farther behind.

"With us here trying to fool around with $50,000, we're just spinning our wheels," said Casey.

"If we're going to compete, we have to have the ability to tell the world we are here."

All was not doom and gloom, though, as the county's economic development officer Mark Stagg said he has received interest from five businesses who are looking at settling in the county.

Stagg also said he has received some "positive vibes" from one senior official, although he added that he could not promise any jobs will come out of the interest.

Marketing head Brian Dean said he also has high hopes for future projects, including another try at getting a television ad together. Dean said the television advertisement did not get off the ground this year because of a lack of willing businesses to participate in the venture. However, a few businesses did get together in Dorset to produce their own television ad.

Dean also asked for businesses, councils and other groups to put aside their individual interests and act for the greater interest.

"Once we all start working together then we can start working against the Muskokas," said Dean.

The chamber also held its annual election and there were no surprises. Just 14 people competed for the 13 spots on the board of directors.

The four new members of the board are Heather Alloway who has worked on the board's marketing committee, Steve Heming who is chairperson of the Haliburton County Tourism and Recreation

Mark Stagg says five businesses are looking to relocate in county

Development committee, Doug Stephens who has been working on the Chamber's new data base system and Gord Monk who has been serving on the board's membership committee.

This year's directors who served on the board last year are: Dennis Casey, Rhonda Elstone, Derek Lowry, John Beachli, Brian Moore, Dorothy Mackenzie-Payne, Andy Salvatori, Brian Dean and Ann Martino.

Under a constitutional change, directors will serve for two years, being elected on an alternating basis of six and seven members yearly. The board will decide who will be the first members to serve two years at its first meeting.

New supply policy to save $30,000

Occasional teachers must work 20 days before getting full recognition for qualifications

by Andy Holloway

A new policy regarding occasional teachers could save more than $30,000 for the Haliburton County Board of Education.

At the last general meeting on September 22, the board approved a new policy which will reduce the amount of money some supply teachers will make. The board was told that if a similar policy had been in place last year, it would have saved about $31,000.

The savings come by increasing the number of days when a supply teacher begins to receive a salary based on their qualifications and experience from one day to 20 consecutive days.

Teachers supplying for less than 20 consecutive days in a school year for the same teacher will now be paid on a per diem salary based on 1/194th of the minimum of Category A1, the lowest category, from the Secondary School Collective Agreement. A teacher in Category A1 earns $160 per day.

Long-term supply teachers will be paid according to their experience and qualifications based on the appropriate elementary or secondary collective agreement.

In other words, supply teachers will be paid a daily rate equal to that of a beginning teacher. However, when a teacher supplies in one classroom for 20 or more days, his/her experience and education will be recognized.

Teachers are paid on a sliding scale that recognizes education and experience. Category A1 applies to new teachers with the minimum educational requirements. Teachers move up in categories with experience and education.

month. He will also be going to a two-day orientation meeting put on by the Reform party for new candidates.

To win his party's nomination Devolin worked an effective two-month campaign. He sold more than 100 memberships, organized a barbecue for potential supporters and participated in nine candidate meetings.

Going into the nomination meeting Monday, he said he felt confident. "I did all that I could do. Therefore, I felt that I should be in decent shape."

His confidence was justified by the vote. With support from 65 per cent of the eligible voters, Devolin won the nomination on the first ballot. Paul Pagnuolo was second with 23 per cent and Victor Norman was third with 12 per cent.

Devolin says the magnitude of this victory allows him to work in the confidence that association members are behind him. "The numbers allow me to move with a little more authority," he says. "It shows there is no division."

The nomination meeting was attended by about 500 people, with strong representation from all parts of the riding. Each of the candidates addressed the crowd with a 20-minute speech, outlining their backgrounds and reasons for seeking the nomination.

Other events of the evening included presentations to new party members Brian Holden and John Gunning. Holden was the 999th person to join the riding association while Gunning was the 1,000th. They were presented with pins and copies of Reform Party leader Preston Manning's book "The New Canada."

An unofficial vote was taken on the referendum issue with the "no" side winning 252 to 8. The vote was taken by placing single coins in either of two jars at the entrance to the hall.

School bought

Township buys Norland Public School property

by Jerry Grozelle

It's finally official. The people of United Townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford (LDL) are the proud owners of the Norland Public School property.

The legal documents declaring the municipality the new owner of the property were received last week. LDL will officially take possession on October 15.

The 6,000 square-foot building will be the new home of the municipal office, library and council chambers. The playground area will be maintained for the use of area residents and visitors as well.

After several weeks of negotiations between municipal representatives and the Victoria County Board of Education, the township agreed to purchase the property for $69,500.

The good news for the ratepayers of the United Townships is that the municipality won't have to borrow any money to finance the purchase.

LDL Reeve Doug Horton, one of the four-member negotiating team, said that the "vast majority" of the funds for the purchase was within the township's budget.

"We'll take it out of existing funds," Horton said. "What little extra there is will come out of the surplus that we're anticipating for this year."

No major repairs are needed before the school can be put to use. The repairs will mainly consist of painting, decorating and weatherproofing. Some new electrical wiring will have to be added to accommodate the office equipment.

Many of the renovations that will be needed to spruce up the old school for its new function will be done on a volunteer basis by members of council and township staff. Horton is hoping that the community will lend its support and help out with the renovations.

"By setting an example, we hope others will come forward," Horton said.

He couldn't put a dollar figure on the cost of renovations.

tions.

"It's not going to cost us a lot to get into it, anyhow," the Reeve said. "A lot of the work will be done over a period of time."

The plan is to use the old part of the school for the council chambers. The front part of the addition will be the municipal office and the south-east corner of the building has been set aside for the library.

The current Township office will soon be sporting a for sale sign. Council will decide on the best way to dispose of the property. Horton said that there are three options: sale by tender, by auction or by listing it with a real

A refreshing new approach

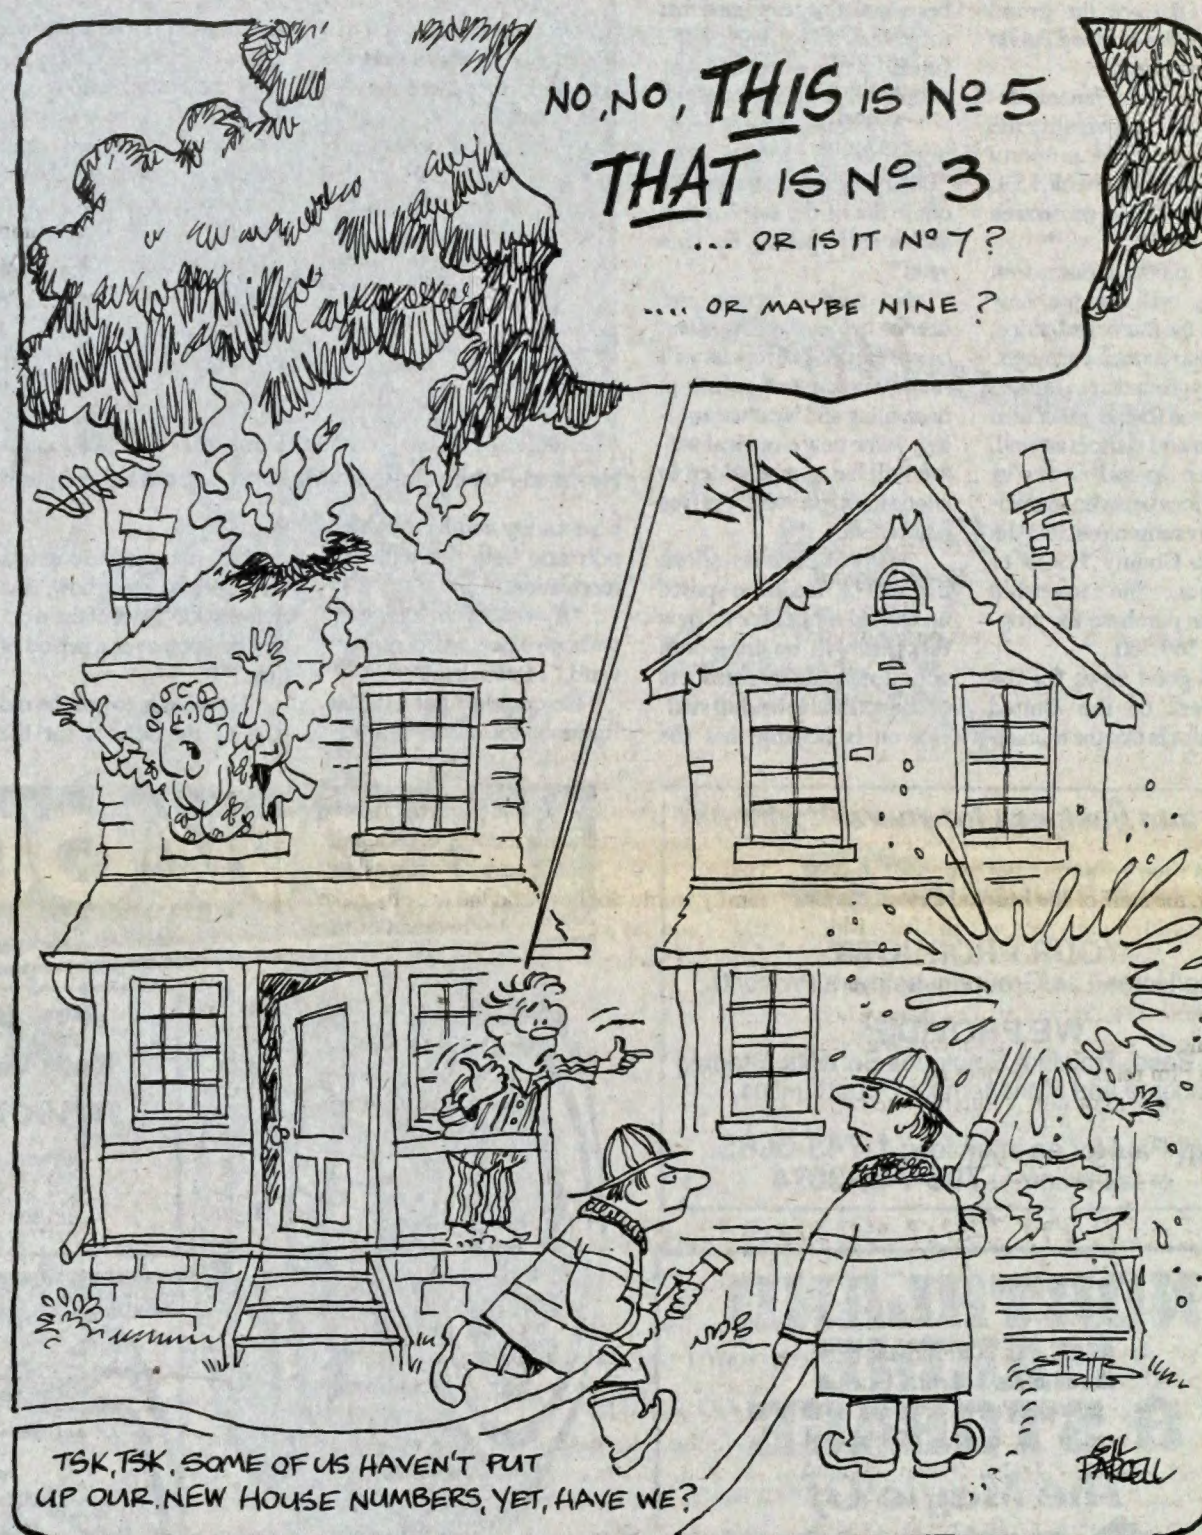

It's refreshing to know there are still people out there who can look beyond the haggling and grasp an opportunity to improve their community.

A group of Haliburton County residents - not Minden or Haliburton residents, but Haliburton County residents - have taken it upon themselves to redirect the most emotionally-charged issues this county has ever been forced to deal with. With no political ties to bind them, this group brings a new, clearer, perspective to the hospitals debate, one of optimism and determination. They have taken a good look at the developments, with particular notice paid to recent assurances from the Ministry of Health and from St. Joseph's Hospital. Accepting these assurances at face value, they have decided it is time to set the wheels in motion on a fundraising drive to ensure local money will be available when the studies are complete.

Haliburton County needs improved health care facilities, but unless someone takes the bull by the horns, an opportunity may well be missed. It's painfully evident that we cannot rely solely on local politicians and committee members to unravel this birds nest. Their conflicting ideals preclude them from successfully uniting this county in even the noblest of efforts.

This fledgeling committee, however, has no expressed opinions on the issue. By avoiding the politics of this issue they have the potential to pull the people of this county together in an effort that may benefit us all. They appear willing to accept the outcome of the Planning and Development committee's current study and are taking the next logical step by ensuring funds will be available to act on the recommendations.

This is an effort which deserves our wholehearted support.

Everest: The highest junkyard in the world

Ev-er-est n. Mount, a mountain in S. Asia, on the boundary between Nepal and Tibet; the highest mountain in the world.

Webster's College Dictionary

It stands a towering five and a half miles above sea level, the highest gable on the rooftop of the world. It's been the subject of poems, ballads, books and films. Humans have died by the scores trying to climb its flanks. Adjectives like "spectacular" "awesome" and "magnificent" seem puny and pathetic in the presence of its sheer, mind-unhinging majesty. It's been called the most beautiful sight on the planet and the Eighth Wonder of the World.

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

It is also a dump.

Specifically, a garbage dump. One created by wealthy, arrogant, supposedly wilderness-loving humans who should know better.

Chris Bonnington is a member of that extremely elite group of mountaineers who can claim they've climbed Everest and lived to tell about it. His summation?

"Everest is the highest junkyard in the world. It is littered with discarded tins, tents, food and empty oxygen tanks. There's so much up there that a full-scale expedition would be needed to remove it."

To a non-mountaineer it seems incredible, but the fact is, thousands of mountaineers from around the world converge on the slopes of Everest every year to try their luck. It costs many thousands of dollars even to fail to climb the mountain, so the people who come are most often rich. The kind of folks who are used to having "other people" take care of their garbage.

There are no garbage trucks or blue boxes in the Committee confident of hospital's future

Editor

As a group of concerned citizens of Haliburton County, dedicated to ensuring equitable access to health care, we applaud the recent articles in the newspapers. Specifically, the assurances from our MPP, Mr. Dennis Drainville, (statements supported by the ministry of health), in which he assures us that "the government has no plans to close the Minden Hospital."

Further we have received assurances in letters from Mr. Frank Lussing, the Chief Executive officer of St. Joseph's hospital that there will be no reduction of services at the Minden Hospital and in fact there may be enhanced service capabilities.

The needs of the county have been clearly defined in a study completed in 1991 entitled "Building a Healthy Community for the Future". This study recommends that 15 long term care beds be allocated for both Minden and Haliburton and that the level of service at the Minden hospital be either maintained or enhanced. We are pleased that both Mr. Drainville and Mr. Lussing agree with this very professional study.

In view of these assurances our committee is commencing a fundraising campaign in order that money will be available when the studies currently being undertaken by the Haliburton County Planning and Development Committee decide where in Minden these 15 beds will be placed and to what degree the Minden Hospital will be enhanced. We are applying for a charitable tax donation number in order that all concerned citizens in the community may donate.

Announcements as to the method of donating funds to support these initiatives will be detailed in the press as they become available.

Minden Hospital provides quality care

Note: The following is addressed to the doctors, nurses and staff at the Minden hospital.

We are writing to express our gratitude for the treatment that was given to our father, Major George William Pearce, during his stay in your care.

It is without a doubt, that had our father and loving husband been in a larger city hospital, we would not have had his company for the time we did. Not only were we allowed to spend time with him, but and most importantly, the staff of the hospital treated Major Pearce with dignity, respect and friendship.

Those qualities were most important to our dad and husband and certainly made his stay more pleasurable than it might have been in a more "sterile" environment. We often heard him remark of his fondness for those who took care of him, something he might well not have had in a larger institution.

He passed on amongst people he liked, in a setting where he was most comfortable, and in a part of the province he adored.

Our thanks for bringing happiness and peace in a most trying time.

We, and quite probably others, would be most disappointed if persons in higher places felt it appropriate to remove from Minden, a group of people that have so much to offer the community of residents as well as cottagers. Had the hospital not been where it was, my family would not have had the time to make peace and say good bye to the head of the family. Thank you.

Public versus private

A tale of two seniors institutions

Editor,

Extendicare in Haliburton is privately-run and has 60 beds, all extended care. One person is the administrator/director of nursing.

Hyland Crest in Minden has 62 beds, 44 extended care and 18 residential. Hyland Crest has a director of nursing, an administrator plus a Chief Administrative Officer at the county level.

Is this typical of a public institution? I would be interested in finding out if staffing levels are this disproportionate throughout the public institution.

If this is the case, then it's no wonder we are seeing tax increases way above inflation.

Himalayas, so the trash gets left behind at the campsites or tossed into ravines.

Fortunately, not every visitor to Everest is a pig. There's a group called Youth To Everest, made up of Canadian and New Zealand volunteers, who ponied up more than $4,000 apiece for the privilege of flying to the slopes of Everest and cleaning up the junk.

It's not a Club med vacation. The volunteers endured six hour hikes and debilitating bouts of altitude sickness. Even halfway up Everest a human has to drink four litres of water a day to avoid dehydration. And it's exhausting. "At 15,000 feet" says volunteer Dawn Sinko, "even turning the pages of a book can be exhausting."

Aromatic, too. One of the culture shocks they had to get used to was going without hot baths for months at a time. The only way to heat water is by burning wood. And the forests are almost gone.

The volunteers stuck it out, to the admiration of the Nepalese who have had to live in the rich people's litter. They remember the days when there were no Yuppy trekkers on Everest. Dawn Sinko says "You'd ask them what it was like before the tourists came and they'd get really sad and say: "Oh, it was wonderful."

Maybe it will be again.

Meanwhile, I notice my local paper that a bunch of volunteers spent last weekend cleaning up a river right here in Canada. The Speed River is a tiny stream that will never be mistaken for the Amazon or the St. Lawrence. Truth to tell, you can walk across it in rubber boots and not get wet most of the time.

Nevertheless, a group called Friends of the Speed managed to fill six dumpsters and 700 garbage bags, and to fish out more than 150 rubber tires.

What's heartening is that it wasn't just a bunch of dewy-eyed eco-freaks who pitched in. The dumpsters were donated by a waste-disposal firm which also hauled them to a landfill site. The municipality waived the usual $90-per-tonne dumping fee. A local plant allowed organizers to use its land during the cleanup. And a tire recycling company offered to pick up the discarded tires.

You know, sometimes it seems as if we might just get our act together yet.

Bill Gliddon (right) accepts the Highlander of the year award from John Beachli.

Music teacher named Highlander of the year

by Andy Holloway

Bill Gliddon has brought music into the hearts of many Haliburton residents for over 30 years - a worthy enough reason to be named Highlander of the Year by the County's Chamber of Commerce.

Gliddon, best known for being a music teacher and church choirmaster, received one of the Ontario Bicentennial Awards for Citizenship in 1984 as a testament to his many years of faithful service in education, church and the community.

Still, Gliddon was visibly moved by the honour bestowed on him by the chamber.

"In our lives we all have surprises, pleasant and unpleasant. This year, I've had a few unpleasant ones which makes this award very special," said Gliddon in accepting the award.

Born and raised in the Highlands, Gliddon left to attend the University of Toronto after graduating from the Haliburton County District High School.

Gliddon returned to the county in 1962 after graduating from U of T's Music History and Composition program with one of the highest marks in the university's history. He taught privately and was also hired as organist and choirmaster at St. Georges Anglican Church.

Vice-president of the chamber, John

Beachli, who presented the award to Gliddon, said Gliddon soon became "Haliburton County's foremost pianist, classical composer, teacher and friend to all."

Beachli said Gliddon had many offers to leave the county to make more money and receive more fame, but stayed to be close with his friends, his home and his church.

The year after he returned to the county, Gliddon was hired to teach in the elementary school system. In 1965, he staged "Oliver", the first of many productions with school children.

Gliddon formed a county choir in 1974 and wrote several compositions for the choir which sang all over the country, including a show at the Ontario Place Forum in Toronto. Seven years later, Gliddon composed perhaps his best-known piece, "Requiem for Terry Fox" in honour of another man who gave his all to the community.

Beachli summed up his feelings by saying Gliddon represented many things to many people.

"After all the years of giving, Bill can look upon his accomplishments with immense satisfaction when he hears - 'Oh, yes, Mr. Gliddon was my teacher,' - 'Great guy. I sang in one of his choirs,' - 'Sure I know Bill Gliddon. I've sat in the lodge with him for years,' - 'Sure I know Bill Gliddon - he's my friend.'"

For the birds:

Add a splash of colour and activity to the winter by feeding the birds

by Russ Duhaime

From a quiet picnic bench on the front lawn of the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre, Ron Pittaway listens astutely to the sounds of nature and contemplates winter.

The leaves have barely begun to turn, offering a mere suggestion of the brilliance they will unveil in the days to come. Autumn itself is just a few days old and the sun's warm caress hints at the possibility of an Indian summer. So what is it that directed his thoughts to the winter?

It's not the sights, but the sounds that conjure winter images. It's the sound of birds calling from the dense cover of the nearby trees. Chickadees, nuthatches, grossbeaks and woodpeckers; those familiar winter birds that linger on in the north after the ducks, hawks, swallows and warblers have flown south.

Pittaway, an interpreter with the Frost Centre, is an unabashed bird lover whose interest is keen even when most birds have headed to warmer parts of the globe. And now, with the annual migration well underway, he's looking forward to the return of the winter birds.

To say that blue jays and chickadees "return" to the area in the winter isn't quite accurate. They have been here all summer, but their presence was less obvious. Now, however, they seem to be foraging a little closer to urban areas, calling out from time to time amidst the thick gold and green foliage, occasionally fluttering from one tree to the next. It's as though they are impatiently waiting for people to again put out their winter feeders.

According to Pittaway there's no reason for people to wait until snow flies to start feeding the birds. The argument that feeders might discourage birds from migrating has no basis in fact. The migratory instinct is so ingrained, he says, that birds will migrate regardless of whether or not there are feeders out for them. Migration is genetically coded into their brains and that instinct can't be broken.

Occasionally, individual birds will lack that coding and linger on long after the others have flown. However, feeders aren't to blame for this behaviour. In fact, Pittaway says feeders can sometimes help some birds survive in the unsuitable winter climate. Cardinals, have a much better chance of survival if they are fed.

Anyone who has attempted to feed the birds will know that this is, in fact, a competitive business. The style of feeder, the type and quantity of feed and even the species and proximity of trees will determine whether the birds will visit your feeder or your neighbour's.

A small part of Pittaway's job at the Frost Centre is to take care of the bird feeders throughout the winter. Judging by the thousands of birds that frequent these stations, he knows his business. At the risk of losing his own competitive edge, he has agreed to share some of his trade secrets.

Many birds love suet

Timing, he says, is the first step. Now is the best time to get those feeders out since it will get the birds used to frequenting the area and guarantee they will be in the neighbourhood for the winter.

Well, that's simple enough, but selecting a feeder and type of food is a bit more complicated. If you've been to the hardware store lately, you may have noticed the wide selection that is available. The feeders come in a selection of shapes and designs to suit just about any taste—platform feeders, silos, decorative feeders in the shape of birds, wooden feeders with glass panels, steel coils and cages for suet. There's also the extra paraphernalia, such as special poles, squirrel guards and funnels to help you fill the feeder.

And then there's the food. You can buy sunflower seeds (striped or black), mixed seeds, niger, millet and pots of suet mixtures.

For most people it's a matter of trial and error. You know you've gone wrong when your neighbour complains about how much it's costing him to feed the birds while you haven't yet had to refill yours. You know you're on the right track when your neighbour borrows your binoculars so he can watch the birds at your feeder.

All you need in terms of a feeder is a platform with some sort of cover to keep the snow off. It's simple and economical, says Pittaway. Silo feeders are also quite popular and they come with a variety of openings that allow you to cater to particular birds. In either case, a squirrel guard is a good idea.

Deciding what food to offer depends on what birds you want to attract, says Pittaway. Blue Jays and Grossbeaks, for example, prefer sunflower seeds. Finches, siskins and redpoles prefer much smaller seeds, such as niger or millet.

Many of the mixed seeds on the market are "the biggest rip-off going," says Pittaway. They're very common, but the birds don't like what is in most of them. Oats, wheat and rice are often used as fillers in these feeds and most birds won't eat these ingredients. So, what happens is Blue Jays pick through the pile looking for the sunflower seeds and throw the rest on the ground.

Suet, on the other hand, is a food that many birds love, but is largely overlooked. Basically, suet is beef fat. It doesn't need to be cooked or melted down, just hang it out in an onion bag or wire cage. Suet can be bought at the grocery store or you can use your own trimmings or drippings. Fat from other meats will also attract birds, says Pittaway. Even bacon drippings can be used.

Many people will advise that the salt in bacon drippings is bad for birds. However, Pittaway says this is a myth. "People think that if it's bad for humans it must be bad for birds," he says. The fact is many birds have a craving for salt. This is why you will often see birds pecking away at the side of roads. Pittaway says these birds are foraging for grit and salt.

If you decide to use suet, it's not a good idea to mix in seeds. When birds are going for suet they don't like to get a beak full of seeds, says Pittaway. If you want to mix something with the suet, try peanut butter.

The thing to keep in mind is each bird has its own dietary requirements. Some, like finches, are omnivores and eat only seeds. Blue jays and chickadees are herbivores, which means they like a diet of seeds and suet. Woodpeckers, on the other hand, are carnivores and will be attracted by suet.

To keep it as simple as possible, all you need to put out are sunflower seeds and suet. This, says Pittaway, will attract about 75 per cent of the birds.

Feeding Tips

Here are a few helpful tips to keep in mind when feeding the birds:

- If you're using suet, it's a good idea to fasten the cage in some manner so raccoons can't steal it.
- Don't be afraid to experiment. One experimental feed that seems to work well is sunflower seed that has briefly been put through a coffee grinder or food blender.
- President's Choice dog food is supposed to be great. Apparently the birds love it.
- Consider your backyard habitat.

Feeders work best if they are near a tree or bush. If there are no trees in your yard, try planting a discarded Christmas tree in the snow.

➤ If you have birds crashing into your windows, try putting up some decals or drapes. This problem usually occurs where there are windows on opposite sides of a room. This leads birds to think they can fly through. Another solution is to leave a bit of dirt on the windows.

➤ Try to discourage cats from ambushing birds at feeders. Try letting your cat out at times when the feeder is less active.

A taste of jazz

Toronto musician returns to his roots in Haliburton County

The concert on October 16 is being staged as a fundraising event for the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts. It was MacLeod's family connection with the guild that helped the quartet land this gig.

Clair MacLeod is the vice president of the guild and when her son heard a concert was being planned he asked if the Mike Murley Quartet would be considered. That's what got the ball rolling, he said.

"Mike is always raving about (his home province) Nova Scotia and about how he wants to live there," says MacLeod. "I've been raving about Haliburton and how I'd like to live here." The group has performed on several tours in Nova Scotia, "so this is my chance to get even."

If the Haliburton connection isn't enough to lure you out to the hall for this performance, consider the level of talent this band has in store.

The Mike Murley Quartet is considered one of the most exciting jazz groups in the country. The album, Two Sides, won the 1991 Juno for the best jazz recording. The album was issued under the Unity label, which was established by Murley, MacLeod and others.

Murley, the Quartet's leader, plays tenor saxophone. In addition to his own Juno, he played in the horn section on Brian Dickenson's Juno winning album, In Transition.

Barry Elmes is the group's drummer. He is also a regular member of the Moe Koffman Quartet and has played with Dizzy Gillespie's band. Jim Vivian plays acoustic bass with this and a variety of other bands in Toronto. He is one of the busiest bass players in the city, says MacLeod.

In addition to trumpet, MacLeod plays flugelhorn with the Quartet. He also regularly performs with Rob McConnel and the Boss Brass. Other notable entertainers he has performed with include Linda Ronstadt, Natalie Cole, Tony Bennet, Mel Torme and Eartha Kitt.

estate company.

The property that now houses the municipal office is unsuitable for a residence because it is too small, with no room for expansion.

Horton said that council is prepared to rezone the property to suit the new owner. It would be appropriate for commercial uses such as an office or a small retail outlet.

The School Board approved the Township's offer more than two weeks ago and the Municipality signed the papers at its last meeting.

But Horton said that he didn't consider it "a done deal" until the papers were signed by the VCBE and returned to the Township last week.

"We're very pleased that it (the school property) is going to be owned by the residents of LDL and be preserved as much as possible in its original state," Horton concluded.

Besides Reeve Horton, the negotiating committee representing LDL included, Councillors Lynn Peel and John Macklem and Clerk-Treasurer Brenda Greer.

Still searching for lights

Editor

Last December we wrote a letter to The Times expressing our appreciation for the opportunity to sponsor the Kinette Christmas Tree Decorating Day with children of all ages in the Minden community. Our spirits were somewhat dampened when we lost our Christmas lights on the day that we had to take the ornaments down.

We are appealing to the public, once again, for anyone that may have inadvertently picked them up or may have some knowledge of where they disappeared to.

We are presently planning our winter activities and if we are to participate in this venture again, we would need lights - the old ones back or anybody wishing to donate second-hand outdoor lights would be great. We would, of course, have no objection to new ones either.

We have been talking with SANTA and he tells us he would really like to see our tree again as he passes through our town on Christmas eve and he has asked Kinette President Marg Prentice to accept any donations to help us make this event possible.

Marg may be reached at 286-1171 or drop by her home on Prince Street in Minden.

I was hoping more readers would respond to the article about my research; I guess it would have helped if I had been from the Minden area.

Soccer Redmen keep rolling on

Juniors clip Falcons wings 3-0, seniors claw back for a tie

by Andy Holloway

The junior Haliburton Highlands Redmen soccer team won their second in a row clipping the Fenelon Falls Falcons 3-0.

The junior's win capped off a successful afternoon for the Redmen soccer teams as the seniors salvaged a 1-1 tie with the Falcons after falling behind early in the second half.

The junior Redmen played very aggressively constantly pushing the ball up field while the Falcons stayed back on their heels, particularly in the mid-field.

Jay Corby started things off quickly for the Redmen driving a quick, low shot past a diving Falcon keeper.

Normally there is a let-down after the first goal is scored, but the Redmen continued to pour on the pressure. Their persistence paid off when Dan Howell, after a couple of kicks, finally managed to push the ball across the goal line and a bewildered keeper for a 2-0 lead.

At no point in the first half did the Falcons come close to scoring, but, perhaps due to over-confidence or exhaustion, the Redmen seemed to fade a bit in the second half.

The Falcons came close a number of times early on before a flurry in the Redmen goal crease resulted in the Falcons being awarded a penalty kick. However, Scott Dedman stood his ground and the ball was shot wide to his right.

After the kick, the Redmen seemed to wake up and with about 16 minutes left in the game, Jamie Thivierge scored with a well-placed shot to the top left corner.

Once again, the Redmen fell asleep, but Dedman maintained his shut-out with several good stops, including one on a breakaway.

Also playing well for the Redmen were Chris Andrus in a (more on page 15)

Eric Casper (right) tries to control the ball as a Fenelon Falls defender moves to intercept him. The senior Redmen had to fight hard for a 1-1 tie with the Falcons after falling behind early in the second half.

Football juniors pound Fenelon Falls 30-8

by Andy Holloway

The Haliburton Highlands Redmen junior football team continues to be impressive winning its third game in a row with a 30-8 bashing of the Fenelon Falls Falcons last Friday.

"Once again, we just dominated play. They have a real good defence, but we still managed to score 30 points," coach Gary Brohman said.

The Redmen are now 3-0 on the season and alone in first place in the Kawartha West division. The Falcons fell to 1-1.

As in the past two other games this season, tailback Peter Brohman led the team offensively with two touchdown runs and 150 yards in rushing.

Also scoring touchdowns for the Redmen were tailback Chris Dobbins and fullback Tim Keefer.

For the first time the Redmen managed to convert all three two-point converts with slotback Tim Stouffer and tight ends Aaron Tomlinson and Will Wallace scoring.

The Redmen offence has been potent all season, but the defence has also stood up to the test. The Redmen have given up only nine points, eight of them to the Falcons.

The lone touchdown scored by the Falcons was the first given up by the junior Redmen this year. A testament to the Redmen defensive strength was that it took a 30 yard pass interference call to set up the touchdown.

Defensive stand-outs included Aaron Tomlinson, Jack Morrison, Ryan Goodall and Colin Klages

Coach Brohman said the win is important because an undefeated team does not have to play play-off games in the Kawartha West.

"In football play-off games, the underdog can win quite easily," Brohman said. "We're sitting, hopefully, we'll see what happens."

"Our juniors will have a tough game in two weeks against I.E. Weldon. This week against L.C.V.I. we should beat them quite handily," said a confident Brohman.

The Redmen return home in three weeks to play their final game of the season against Fenelon Falls.

Ski resort hitting new heights

Sir Sam's million dollar expansion should keep resort in competition

by Andy Holloway

Standing on the top of Sir Sam's ski hills last week, you could feel the bone-freezing chill of winter on its way and a quick burst of flurries added to the vision.

While there were no skiers in sight there was still plenty of action at Sir Sam's where workers are in the midst of a million dollar expansion of the ski resort.

Six weeks ago, the owners of Sir Sam's received approval from their bank to proceed with the massive improvements to the 27-year-old ski resort.

Building a million dollar expansion onto any business may seem a little unorthodox in Ontario's stagnating economy, but Sir Sam's co-owner Chris Bishop says the move makes economic sense.

Bishop says interest rates have been low, business has been increasing and companies are willing to lower their prices. The new quad chair lift is the same as one the resort put in place three years ago, but costs $50,000 less.

The improvements, which also include an enlarged chalet, additional runs and expanded parking facilities, complete a five year expansion of the resort costing $2.5 million.

Perhaps most important to skiers are the additional runs that have been created near the new lift. Called The Ridge, the new runs present a variety of terrain with enough curves to make it challenging for all levels of skiers.

Bishop says the terrain of Sir Sam's differs from many other resorts because it is mostly downhill with very few flat areas that slow skiers down.

The current round of improvements were begun a year ago when the Bishop family hired a consultant to project the resort's growth rate. Last year, Sir Sam's saw an increase of 20 per cent and Bishop says a similar increase has been predicted for this year.

The bank's approval came just in time says Bishop because funding for the improvements had to be raised from outside the family.

"If we had to wait even just another week, we would not have been able to do the expansion this year because of the timing," says Bishop.

With the additional lift and new runs, Bishop now has more to offer skiers who traditionally might have gone to other hills around Peterborough, Huntsville and Barrie.

(more on page 17)

Chris Bishop stands at the top of Sir Sam's where a new quad chair lift is being built. The lift is just part of a million dollar expansion taking place at the hills.

Football seniors win 38-0

by Andy Holloway

Another blow-out.

For the third time this year, the senior Haliburton Highlands Redmen football team blew away its competition beating the previously undefeated Fenelon Falls Falcons 38-0 last Friday.

"It was just another outstanding game from our offence and our defence," Coach Gary Brohman said. "I think we have a really sound football team."

The Redmen scored early, getting two touchdowns in the first quarter and another two in the second quarter putting the game out of reach at half-time.

In the third quarter, the Redmen got one more touchdown and then coasted to an easy victory. The Redmen have outscored the opposition 106-3 in their three games so far.

The win leaves the Redmen undefeated and alone in first place with a 3-0 record. Fenelon drops to second place at 2-1.

Scoring rushing touchdowns for the Redmen were quarterback Jay Hughes, fullback Craig Harding and tailbacks Endres Weber and Andy Bacon. The Redmen also scored their first passing touchdown when Chris Greenfield hauled in a 12 yard pass from Hughes.

"The offensive line did an outstanding job in blocking," Brohman said listing centre Rob Kraemer, guards Derek Wilson and Todd McCracken, tight end Greg Brohman and the tackles Brian Cooney and Jamie Keefer.

For the second game in a row, the defence refused to yield any points. In total, the Redmen have only given up three points.

"Defensively, we haven't had a touchdown scored against us yet in three games. We were really sound and we just played really, really well," Brohman said. "Jerry Cooper had an outstanding game along with Jim Hyde."

The Redmen take their 3-0 record to Lindsay for the next two weeks, facing L.C.V.I., usually a powerhouse and the only team to score points against the Redmen this year, and then I.E. Weldon.

Dollo's IGA helped celebrate its customer appreciation day by donating proceeds from a barbecue to help pay the travelling costs of three Minden boys who made the Central Ontario AAA

Hot Dog!

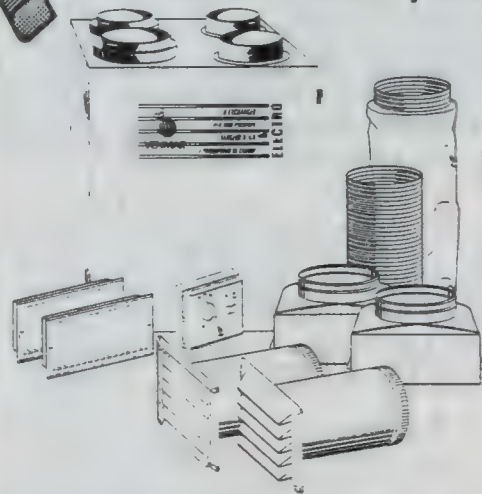

Hockey is not a cheap sport to play as every adult with children knows.

The game is even more expensive in rural areas where large travelling costs are an added price of playing. Three Minden families who have boys who made the Central Ontario AAA Wolves will see their gas bills increase even more as they travel to places as far away as Belleville on a regular basis.

Last Thursday afternoon, the three boys, Nicholas Kulas, Jerry Jordan and Andrew McKelvey, received a helping hand from Dollo's IGA who held a barbecue to raise money for the boys as part of their customer appreciation day.

In a show of solidarity, Margo Sisson from the Minden Minor Hockey Association was also present.

good two way effort, Ryan Goodall who played very aggressively and Dan Howell who supplied muscle up front.

The senior Redmen are still undefeated, but the Falcons showed they are not ready to concede the Kawartha West division. Coach Walter Tose said if the Falcons beat L.C.V.I. this week, it could be a three team race for first in the four team division.

Half-way through the season, the Redmen are still undefeated and in first place with two wins and a tie.

Fenelon made it tough for the Redmen when they went up 1-0 with about 20 minutes left in the game. The Falcons scored on a direct kick from about 25 yards out as the ball just passed over the outstretched finger-tips of keeper Bruce Milne. Tose said the shot was a good one, although a bit lucky as the strong wind seemed to hold the ball up just long enough for it to reach the net.

Coach Tose said the Falcons speed proved tough to handle for the Redmen both offensively and defensively. Many times, the Falcons were able to thwart scoring chances as they got to the ball first and kicked it out of danger.

"They seem to be faster than us to the ball. They can play 'kick and run' and get to the ball before us," Tose said.

Ten minutes later, with the Falcons falling back to protect their slim lead, Darren Parsons tied it up with a beautiful backwards header that surprised the Falcons keeper.

The Redmen continued to press during the last few minutes, but were unable to score the winner. Continuing their aggressive play, Eric Casper was given a yellow card for a hard tackle. On the positive side, Casper probably stopped a great scoring chance by the Falcons.

The Falcons, who went into a defensive shell, seemed content with their tie and rarely pushed the ball up field with any authority after the Redmen had scored.

The tentative play by the Falcons late in the game was in direct contrast to their aggressive play in the first half. Both teams had many chances to score, but lacked the finishing touch.

The Redmen came out strong and dominated the first 20 minutes. Nico Haedicke had perhaps the best chance as he raced up the right side after a loose ball only to see it smothered at the last second by the Falcon's keeper.

Redmen keeper Milne made a couple of good stops during the last 10 minutes of the half when the Falcons seemed to rebound from the Redmen onslaught.

While the seniors remain undefeated, the junior Redmen are 2-1 midway through the season and, with the exception of the game against I.E. Weldon, have played very well.

This week, the Redmen can avenge their 4-1 loss to the Weldon Wildcats when both Redmen teams travel to Lindsay on Wednesday.

Ski season opens soon

Bishop says these skiers are the ones the resort hopes to get more of in the future as they spend more money and time on the hills than do skiers from Toronto, most of whom have a cottage nearby or are staying at a friend's cottage.

The strategy seems to be working says Bishop who works the weekends during the winter in the ticket shop so he can find out where people came from and why. Several years ago, he says 70 per cent of his business came from Toronto. Last year, that number dropped to 60 per cent.

"We're targeting people who are closer than Toronto. We're aiming for the places that already have ski hills like Peterborough or Bracebridge, but we feel we have something more to offer," says Bishop.

The second quad chair lift will ensure that there will, once again, be no line-ups for skiers - an aspect that Bishop says is important to the expanding hills.

"The new quad lift adds 25 per cent to our capacity. Even if we do get a larger increase this year, there won't be any line-ups," says Bishop noting that long line-ups are the bane of many ski resorts like Horseshoe or Mount St. Louis in surrounding areas.

Bishop also says the trails at Sir Sam's are one of the best groomed in the province, a point he backs up by noting that Sir Sam's has one of the lowest injury rates in the province.

However, Bishop says one of the most important attractions that Sir Sam's has is the "family atmosphere." The hills have been owned by the Bishops since the beginning. In 1965, the Bishops started out with just one T-bar lift and an outhouse. Now it has a large chalet with a place for family picnics and school outings, six chair lifts of various sizes and a dozen runs ranging in difficulty from very easy to the very challenging.

The Bishops own 1800 acres of picturesque property around Eagle Lake which was considered a prime ski area by the Ontario government in 1947. The site was chosen as one of the best in Southern Ontario and the only one in the Haliburton region.

While the new lift will not be ready until late November or early December, people can get a good look at the other improvements the resort has in place this Sunday during an open house.

Even though last week, the new chalet remained largely unfinished and without carpeting or paint, Bishop says it should be ready in time for the sneak preview opening.

Nico Haedicke is one of the offensive threats of the Haliburton Highlands Redmen senior soccer team has this year.

High Times

by Jenna Stutt

Nico Haedicke carries on family soccer tradition

The Hal High senior soccer team, well known for its excellent seasons, should be in for yet another, due in part to Nico Haedicke, one of the offensive strengths of the Redmen.

If the name Haedicke sounds familiar, it should. Just a few years ago, Nico's older brother Jan played an important part in leading the Sr. team to a win at the Kawartha Championships. Since then the team has had its ups and downs, but with the rise of another Haedicke it looks like they're ready to take on any opponents.

Nico has been playing soccer since he was six years old and has played for the Redmen teams for four years. If you were to meet him walking down the halls of HHSS, you would find Nico kind, courteous and shy. But if you were to meet him on the soccer field, you'd find a totally different person.

A strong, aggressive forward with the ability to leave defenders outmanoeuvred and overwhelmed, Nico modestly attributes most of his skill in soccer to his older brother.

In each of the first two games of the Sr.

Redmen's soccer season, Nico scored a goal, helping the team beat I.E. Weldon and L.C.V.I. 2-1.

Will Nico help lead the Sr. Redmen to another Kawartha Championship?

Well, we'll have to wait to find out, but from what we've seen so far this season, there is a good chance that this year's team may be even stronger than the Kawartha Championship team of 1990.

...even a little regular physical activity makes a healthy difference!

Lou Consky is presented with the business of the year award by Chamber of Commerce vice-president John Beachli.

The show must go on

Haliburton theatres voted business of the year

by Andy Holloway

Only one businessman has brought the larger-than-life images of Clark Gable, John Wayne and Madonna to the big screen in Haliburton County - Lou Consky.

Celebrating 50 years of movies, the Chamber of Commerce presented Consky, Molou and Beaver Theatre the 'business of the year' award last Wednesday.

Consky and his wife Molly who is recovering nicely after suffering a stroke last month, have operated the Molou theatre in Haliburton Village for the past 51 years. Its younger partner the Beaver theatre has been open in Minden for 48 years.

Consky, in accepting the award, said he was surprised because business has been down at the two theatres over the past year. The fact he has been in business for 50 years was probably the deciding factor in the award, but Consky said the time has been enjoyable.

"When you're doing something you enjoy, the time seems to fly," Consky said.

John Beachli, vice-president of the chamber's board of directors, said the two theatres have been a refuge of entertainment for everyone who has lived in the county.

"No one here can say they haven't spent a few hours inside one of the theatres," Beachli told chamber members.

As they grew older, Beachli said the theatres became a place for their children to enjoy.

"It's been a place that's kept our kids off the street, even if only for an hour or so, but at least we knew where they were for awhile," Beachli said.

In conclusion Consky said the time-honoured entertainment cliché, and possibly his motto, "The show must go on."

Hunting season quiet so far

Police, MNR report few complaints

It has been a quiet season so far in terms of trespassing complaints related to duck hunting season.

Steve Adam of the Minden OPP detachment said Wednesday the office has received only one call, and it was more of an inquiry than a complaint. Police have received a few calls from residents who had heard gunshots, but again, they were not complaints.

The same holds true at the Ministry of Natural Resources office in Minden. Area 6 Supervisor Stan Flemming says he has received no calls to date. However, he says trespassing complaints are normally more prevalent once the deer season opens.

Hunting season for goose, ducks, partridge and small game opened here in mid September. Normally, says Adam, police would have received a few complaints about hunters activities at this time of the year. He says this has been a particularly quiet season to date.

A fact sheet from the ministry of natural resources says traditionally the ministry and police receive many complaints from landowners about hunters trespassing on their lands. The actions of a few irresponsible people can affect the public's perception of all hunters.

Hunters caught trespassing can face charges under either the Trespass to Property Act or the Game and Fish Act.

Under the Trespass to Property Act, the public is expected to know better than to enter private property without permission from the land owner. Entry onto certain lands is prohibited, even in the absence of signs prohibiting entry. These include land that is under cultivation, land on which trees have been planted, woodlots on land used primarily for agricultural purposes and any land which is fenced off.

Landowners wishing to post their properties have two options. They may use signs indicating that entry is prohibited such as "No Trespassing", "No Entry" or "Keep Out". If a landowner only wishes to keep out certain groups, "No Hunting" signs might be sufficient.

The Trespass to Property Act also allows landowners to use symbols or colour markings rather than signs. Red markings mean all entry is prohibited. Yellow markings indicate that entry is prohibited except for certain activities, and a person who wishes to enter must find out either from the signs or the landowner what activities

An ethical hunter asks permission to hunt on private property

Get to know the landowner. Talk to him or her and understand the concerns for fences, livestock and crops.

Learn where you can hunt, how often and if you can bring companions.

Hunt only in designated areas and observe safety zones.

Demonstrate that you are a responsible and ethical hunter by obeying firearm safety rules, game laws and the regulations.

Offer to share your game, or to help out with chores.

Care for the land, stock, crops and buildings as if they were your own.

Don't litter.

In dealing with trespassers, The OPP Pe-

A Sign You Can Trust

Ensure your smoke detector is working

Having a smoke alarm will not do you and your family any good if it's not working properly.

That is the theme for this year's Fire Prevention Week (October 4-10). The Fire Marshal's office has for many years tried to persuade people to install smoke alarms in their homes.

However, the fire service is now starting to educate people about the importance of regular testing and maintenance of their smoke alarms. People are still dying in home fires where there are smoke alarms, but the batteries have been removed or are not working. Last year, 135 people died because of fires in Ontario. Most of them died in their homes because they didn't have a smoke alarm or it wasn't operational.

Most of these fatal fires occur at night while you are sleeping, therefore you need the early warning which a working smoke alarm can provide to escape. Smoke from a fire, not the actual flame, is the cause of most fire-related deaths. In order to protect yourself from home fires smoke alarms should be installed in the hallway outside of every separate sleeping area and on each level of your home. However, regular testing of the alarms is just as important. The Minden Fire Department offers these maintenance tips to keep your smoke alarm in good working order.

* follow the manufacturers recommendations, but generally you should test your alarms weekly by pushing the test button

* some alarms should be tested monthly with actual smoke, follow the manufacturer's guidelines and be careful when using matches

* replace the battery once a year or when the low battery beep signal sounds once per minute, use only batteries recommended for your particular alarm

* if you are unable to test your smoke alarm yourself, get a family member or neighbor to test it for you

If you have any questions about smoke alarms contact your local fire department.

County has its own 'Yes' committee

by Andy Holloway

A group of Haliburton residents has formed a "Yes to Canada" committee for the upcoming referendum, and it plans to get its message out using commercial means.

Former Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis has been elected chairman of the committee and he says they have a budget of between $4,000 and $5,000 to work with.

He says pins will be distributed, posters put up and ads placed in the local media to try to persuade people to vote "yes" in the referendum on the constitutional accord on October 26.

The pins, which will say either "Yes to Canada" or just a big "Yes", will be put in "strategic locations where there's lots of traffic" including banks, libraries and stores, says Davis.

The money will be raised from local residents and businesses, says Davis, who adds that the committee is not directly affiliated with any of the major political parties.

The committee met last Thursday morning to discuss strategy, but will not have its first public meeting until October 20 at the Haliburton Legion, just six days before voting takes place.

"This whole thing is short-term, so I don't think we'll have a problem with the date," says Davis.

The committee has 12 members including Dysart Reeve Chris Hodgson, Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman and former provincial Conservative Party candidate and Dysart Reeve Murray Feary.

The party will also receive help in getting out the "yes" message from local MP Bill Scott and MPP Dennis Drainville. Scott's office sent out flyers in the mail last week and Drainville will be taking part in a forum on the accord in Haliburton later this month.

In other parts of the country, the 'No' vote side was able to get off to an earlier start than the 'Yes' side. A month ago, both Reform Party leader Preston Manning and Parti Quebecois leader Jacques Parizeau voiced their opposition to the accord. However, the 'Yes' side is now in full swing, and working hard to convince Canadians to vote yes.

Oshawa man dies in Red Pine boating accident

by Andy Holloway

One man is dead after a boat carrying three people capsized in heavy waves on Red Pine Lake on September 27.

Sergeant Steve Adam of the Minden OPP says the three adults were trying to cross Red Pine Lake in a 12-foot aluminum boat Sunday afternoon when the boat capsized at about 5:30 p.m. because of waves as high as four feet.

The three people clung to the boat for about an hour before one person could no longer hang on. The other two were able to hold onto the boat until it drifted to shore.

The two survivors spent a night in a cabin before making their way to their car and reporting the incident to police late Monday afternoon. Red Pine Lake can only be accessed by boat and does not have phone service.

OPP divers recovered the body of Robert Sloboda, 52, of Oshawa last Tuesday morning. Adam says Sloboda was not wearing a life jacket at the time although life jackets were in the boat.

Sloboda's wife Jean, who was wearing a life jacket, and his cousin Micheal, also of Oshawa, survived the incident.

Drainville opposes provincial casinos

Claims the proposal is contrary to family values and NDP principles

MPP Dennis Drainville announced today that he will be taking a position against the Government on casino gambling. He spoke to the synod of the Anglican diocese of Toronto on the casino gambling issue on Saturday, September 26.

Mr. Drainville feels that the government's decision to allow casino gambling violates the basic principles of the New Democratic Party.

The New Democratic Party has traditionally had a commitment to family life and quality of life for all citizens in Ontario. Also, the New Democratic Party government has had a historical concern for the poor in society and has vociferously opposed the raising of monies for the State through gambling.

The poor and those on middle incomes are particularly at risk each time the practice of gambling is expanded and families are made more emotionally and economically vulnerable by the operation of various gaming and gambling ventures.

Mr. Drainville said, "Casino gambling is based on the principle of greed. More than this, the profits that will go to the government are based on the certainty that the majority of casino gamblers will lose. Those who gamble are often poor or on modest incomes. It is they who will be further economically deprived by the inevitable losses that they will incur."

Mr. Drainville is concerned because while Ontarians of all economic strata will have to cope with the results of increased gambling in our society, they have not been given any reasonable opportunity to advise the government of their views regarding the issue. He urges the government to stop all moves to establish gambling casinos by Regulation so that appropriate legislation may be introduced into the Assembly along with a process which includes significant opportunities for public consultation and full public hearings.

He said, "My conscience will not let me support the process by which the government is establishing casinos in this province. I will not be supporting this regressive move and I fully intend to be voting against the government if legislation is brought into the House. I hope that more of my colleagues will listen to their consciences."

Order of Ontario seeks nominees

Do you know an outstanding Ontarian—someone who has reached the pinnacle of success in his/her chosen field and contributes to Ontario's international reputation as a centre of innovation, achievement and excellence? You can ensure this exceptional individual is recognized by nominating him or her for the 1993 Order of Ontario.

Nominations are now being accepted for possible recipients of the Order of Ontario, the highest distinction in the province. Established in 1986, this prestigious annual award honours those persons who contribute to the betterment of society, in Ontario and elsewhere, through professional or voluntary service of the highest calibre and of singular excellence in any field of endeavour (music, community service, science, literature, business, etc.)

Any resident of Ontario who measures up to these criteria is eligible for the Order of Ontario. All nominations will be considered by an Advisory Council, comprising the Chief Justice of Ontario, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, and the Secretary of the Cabinet and the clerk of the Executive Council. Those nominees, who have the greatest merit, will be honoured by the province next spring in a ceremony at Queen's Park, where they will receive the insignia of the Order: a stylized trillium in white and green enamel, edged in gold.

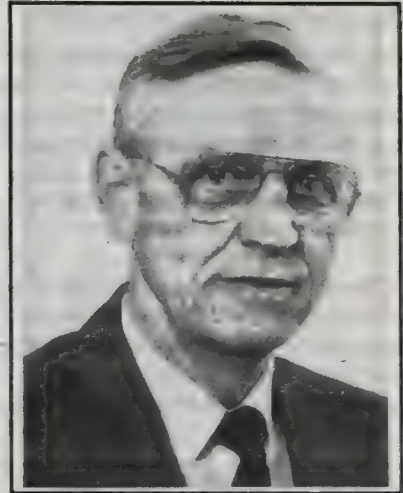

Deadline for nominations for the 1993 Order of Ontario is October 30, 1992. Nomination forms are available at your local MPP's constituency office or contact: The Ontario Honours and Awards Section, Ministry of Citizenship, 77 Bloor St. W., 15th Floor, Toronto, Ontario M7A 2R9.

Gore says there is still hope for the environment

For environmentalists everywhere, the presidential election in the United States has enormous repercussions. President George Bush has made a mockery of his promise to be an "environmental president."

In contrast, Tennessee Senator, Al Gore, this year's Democratic vice presidential candidate, ran for president four years ago as an environmentalist. His current best seller, Earth in the Balance, outlines his platform in detail and is the basis of right wing Republican attacks on Gore as an "environmental extremist." It's important to hear from him directly.

Last spring, I interviewed Gore and here are some of his ideas.

Anticipating the current accusations, he said: "People used to assume that we had to choose between a healthy environment and a healthy economy. It's not true... Waste in the form of excessive consumption of energy or raw materials is also a waste of money and assets and those businesses that have decided to take the lead in minimizing their impact on the environment have begun to find that their profits go up."

To back his point, he cited the success of Northern Telecom in eliminating the use of ozone-depleting CFCs while improving production techniques and saving millions of dollars.

Gore opposes drilling for oil in ecologically sensitive caribou calving grounds of Alaska because "our problem with the consumption of fossil fuel is not that we don't have enough oil to consume.

Our problem is that we're just consuming way too much and it's ridiculous. The gaseous waste products are changing the earth's climate system. The wasteful energy itself is interfering with the development of a rational economic approach to competing in the world.

Gore blames our unwillingness to act on our "tendency not only in business but in politics also to look only at the short term and ignore the long term. Businesses in the West commonly look at the next quarterly report and they give executive bonuses based on performance over a 90-day period... In politics, the incentive is often to maximize performance by the time of the next election, and then things go downhill right after.

Traditionally, pollution has been foisted on the weakest politically and economically. Gore identifies another

Reflections

by David Suzuki

defenseless group: "those of us who live in the future, those who come after us.

We have found a way to transport our pollution onto their backs and they can't defend themselves. They can't speak up and so we are taking advantage of them and abusing the future."

I told him many say the dangers of global warming are exaggerated. He replied: "I hear scientists who are in the tiny minority say that we don't know enough about global climate change to worry about it. I know some scientists who work for tobacco companies who will tell you with a straight face that we don't have enough evidence to link smoking cigarettes with lung cancer... there are a lot of uncertainties. But the weight of the evidence is clear, and so we take action.

All the oil well fires in Kuwait put together on the worst day put less than one per cent of the pollution into the atmosphere that we put out into the earth's atmosphere every day. Our civilization globally is now the equivalent of a 10 pack-a-day habit and we can pretend that it's not doing any damage, but we're only fooling ourselves."

But if the problems are real and so dangerous, why can't we act to avoid them? "We imagine ourselves to be separate from the natural world. We imagine that there is a limitless quantity of all the raw materials we need. We imagine that we can dump our pollution constantly into nature without doing any harm. All of those are illusions.

If you just look at the way we relate to a financial statement, we don't take our capital and use it as our annual spending money. Well, we have natural capital in the form of clean air and water and the forest and biodiversity. We can't rip that out of the earth and consume it each year as if it were annual income for us to do whatever we want, because we destroy the base... We have to get rid of this illusion that we're separate from nature and nothing we do to nature matters."

Through the entire interview, Gore remained optimistic that we could change and head off eco-catastrophe. His optimism is based on "the emergence of a new awareness of our connection to the entire earth, and especially to the last wild places on earth."

He believes that the ultimate force that will move politicians is the public: "When enough people insist upon change to embolden the politicians to break away from the short-term perspective... When enough people change, the political system will fall all over itself to respond to this just demand that we save the environment for future generations."

Every environmentalist should hope that Al Gore wins and becomes a heartbeat away from the U.S. presidency.

September has now come and gone and if there was any summer it was September 10 to September 18 mostly sunny days warm temperatures. This September and last September were about identical. The average temperature was within one degree. The rainfall about same each month, and there was 5 mornings with frost both months. The only added feature was snow the morning of September 30, not much, but a sample of things to come. Rain, we need little or none of it or we could be called the Venice of Ontario. Some control of the water system sure would help.

Haliburton wants all that Minden's got

Editor,

I was pleased to read Douglas Campbell's letter in the newspaper. And maybe those ex-wardens should have received the voice of the taxpayers when they were in office. We haven't a county council we can be very proud of when you consider that, for our population, we have one of the highest property taxes, school taxes and lowest average wages in the province.

Mr. Collins, how dare you say our local Rotary Club is childish. Are we all to sit back and be brainwashed by you people? $12,500 is a small portion of what Minden people put in that fund. Has Haliburton ever helped pay for anything in Minden? If so, I missed that issue. Give Minden their share of beds and hospital money.

Consider the location of the two hospitals. When there is an event taking place at HHSS, there are cars on the road from the bridge to the Donald Road. With cars coming out that road to go to the event and then with school bus going in and out of two schools, it creates quite a bottleneck of traffic.

And you talk about putting beds in Hyland Crest. No thanks. We don't want the same traffic problems in Minden. Ambulances would have to (in some cases) come down the river road, get onto the bridge, cross the road where school children walk and then go through a residential area.

I have never been in Haliburton Hospital and do not care to be. If I had a serious problem, I could be half way to Lindsay's Ross Memorial by the time I was transported to Haliburton and then backtracked as far as Minden.

If you want to move services out of the county seat, why not put some in Stanhope? Fiftyseven per cent of the people are serviced out of Minden and live closer to Stanhope. Unlike Haliburton, Minden does not have parking problems. The streets of Haliburton only hold so many vehicles.

Haliburton seems to have its own set of rules. People in Minden are told they can not do certain things because of conflict of interest. This does not appear to apply to people who live in Haliburton. Gary McKnight, for example, drew wages at Hyland Crest for approximately three years while he was (and still is) the clerk for the county. Chris Hodgson is Reeve of Dysart et al and is on the board of social services.

Minden is the county seat. Haliburton is not. Minden has the grounds and the parking facilities to build a new county building. If the 57 per cent of the people who are serviced by Minden got behind their township councils, these projects might get done. The location and population were why Minden was chosen as the county seat in the first place.

There are many things Minden created that now have "county" tacked on to them, but I'll list them later. Haliburton should create something of its own and not work behind the scenes to see what services or positions it can take from Minden. You never know how successful you might be if you don't try.

Gladys Kellet Wruth.

Doing your part saves dollars and dump trips

Editor,

In recognition of Waste Reduction Week, I thought it may be interesting to compare notes with your readers as to who is doing what to reduce the garbage they take to the dump... excuse me, landfill site

In our household, which comprises my husband and I, we go to the landfill site approximately every six weeks to two months. Our waste is usually made up of an office size waste paper basket (ever notice the name "waste" paper... is there such a thing anymore?), a small box of recyclable glass jars, bottles and cans, and one plastic shopping bag of plastics-packaging. The waste in the basket is usually shop garage waste and foil from packaging.

Junk mail and paper products are burned in the wood stove (not ideal but effective). Newspapers get a second reading in the rabbit cage and then are put through the mulcher and added to the compost, along with waste bedding and all uncooked food waste. There is no cooked food waste, except for the odd chicken skeleton after roast chicken (we eat very little meat). The raccoons make quick work of the chicken bits. Any Styrofoam containers are used as palettes when I paint and are reused when I do my own freezing of ready-to-serve dinners. Old oil for now is being saved and any paints or chemical cleaners are used up completely, but there is still the containers to dispose of. We chip our own brush and compost all yard waste (there is never enough). No pesticides or chemicals are used in our yard or garden maintenance. Instead of plastic bags when shopping, use a couple of cloth bags and use the same cardboard box over and over again (I keep it in the trunk of the car). I simply fill it up at the store, bring it home, empty it into the cupboards and then put it back for the next time.

These are all little things to do my part in being responsible for the waste I create through my daily consumption. Of course, use as few cleaners as possible, with as little environmental impact as possible. Being human is messy, but with a little rethinking I believe I have been able to reduce, re-use or recycle up to 80 per cent of the waste I previously created.

One interesting fact is that waste management in this county costs the taxpayers as much as our roads maintenance and upkeep. This is my personal effort in not adding to our ever increasing tax burden.

Stanhope Bingo bows to competition

Editor,

On Sept 24 the Stanhope Bingo Committee announced that all future bingos at Stanhope were being suspended as a result of the low turnout of players.

In my opinion, this low turnout resulted from a competitive bingo established by the Minden Lions Club in the spring of 1992 and held on the same Thursday evenings.

Revenues derived from both the Stanhope and Lions club bingos provide for further community services in the area. However, I feel it is most inconsiderate of the Lions club to commence operation of this bingo without first attempting to establish an evening in which another service club or organization was not holding a bingo night.

The Stanhope Bingo Committee agreed on Thursday evenings nine years ago to eliminate duplication of bingo on the same evening with other areas. Unfortunately, reciprocal consideration was not forthcoming in the future.

For the good of each community, I urge the Stanhope Bingo Committee and the Minden Lions to get together and reach a compromise on this matter in the best interest of citizens in the respective areas.

Editor,

We have noted your news article "FOCA raising funds for training centre". The article is not quite correct in that it is an Imperial Oil Limited, Royal Bank of Canada sponsored program

Horticulturists plan plant sale and trip to the Royal

The season is winding down, but horticulturalists remain very busy.

Clean up time for the municipal planting beds, harvest time is here with the fruits of their labours at hand to preserve and store. Bulbs and tubes will soon be dug and put away for another season.

At the September meeting they heard all about vines and ground covers - An infinite number of species was beautifully portrayed on the screen.

Four members attended the district mini judging day held in Omeme recently. It was a very interesting and informative event for Lynn Hancock, Ila Cooper, Jean Robson and Evelyn Trepanier.

The OHA District 4 fall meeting will be held in Cobourg on October 24 and is open to all members of the society. Several members are already planning to attend.

A tree planting is planned for the fall. A new tree for the bank of the Gull River on South Water Street is proposed.

The November meeting will be held in the Agnes Jamieson Gallery on the first Tuesday of the month. The election of officers and committees for 1993, awards for monthly competitions and plans for the annual dinner meeting are among the items on the agenda. A plant sale will also be held at St. Paul's Church hall on October 6.

Anyone who is now digging up plants (i.e., perennials, roots, etc.) and wants to dispose of them is asked to bring these packaged and named for the sale, which will be held at 6 p.m.. The sale is open to everyone.

Following the sale at 7:30 p.m., the October meeting will be held in the church hall. Jack Lord, the guest speaker, is from the Royal Botanical Gardens.

He will present an illustrated narrative of the life and adventures of Earnest Thompson Seaton. There is no charge for admission and everyone is welcome to attend.

A bus trip to the Royal Winter Fair is being sponsored by the Horticultural Society of Minden for November 12. The cost of $30 includes return fare and admission to the fair. The bus will stop on the way home for a meal. The fee must be paid by October 24, as the bus must be booked in advance.

Insurance regulations require that all passengers must be OHA members. Non-members are welcome to come along, but will be required to pay an additional $3 membership fee.

Agreement provides national blueprint

The new Constitutional Agreement represents a blueprint for a new, modernized and flexible federalism. It will make the fundamental law of the land clearer, fairer and better able to respond to the economic and social challenges of the future.

A Canada clause, expressing fundamental Canadian values, would be added to Section 2 of the Constitution Act. This clause would guide the courts in interpreting the Constitution.

The Canada clause contains a statement ensuring that the Constitution is interpreted in a manner consistent with the preservation and promotion of Quebec as a distinct society within Canada.

This distinctiveness is based on Quebec's French-speaking majority, its unique culture and its civil law tradition. In recognition of Canada's linguistic duality the constitution is to be interpreted in a manner consistent with the commitment of Canadians to the vitality and development of the language and culture of French speaking and English speaking minority communities throughout Canada and the role of their governments in protecting the linguistic rights of these communities.

Report from Ottawa

from the office of Bill Scott, MP

The inherent right of Aboriginal people to self-government would be recognized in the Constitution and confirmed in the Canada clause, as would the status of Aboriginal governments as a new, third order of government within Canada.

The general principle of division of powers would be that what is available to one province should be available to all. There would be exclusive provincial jurisdiction in six areas we believe are best handled locally - forestry, mining, tourism, housing, recreation, municipal and urban affairs.

The provinces would have more power over immigration and would be able to negotiate with the federal government. Culture would be an area of exclusive provincial jurisdiction, with the federal government maintaining responsibility for existing national cultural institutions and agencies.

As to the amending formula except for the appointment of judges, unanimity would be required for changes to the Supreme Court and Senate. Each province would have a veto on constitutional change to central institutions. The amending formula will be changed so that territories may become provinces through negotiations with the central government only. However, their participation in the amending formula and increase in Senate seats would be subject to unanimity.

The Supreme Court and its current composition would be entrenched in the Constitution. The federal government would name judges from lists submitted by provincial and territorial governments. An Aboriginal role in appointments would be developed.

The Constitution would contain a new, non-justiciable provision setting out policy objectives underlying the social and economic union. These would include a comprehensive health care system; adequate social services and benefits (housing, food, and other basic necessities); high quality primary and secondary education; protecting, preserving and sustaining the integrity of the environment; working together to strengthen Canada's economic union; free movement of persons, goods and services and capital; the goal of full employment; reasonable standard of living; and suitable and equitable development.

The Senate will have equal representation from each province. It would be elected, either by the people of each province or by the provincial legislatures.

The Senate's powers would make it effective in that it could defeat legislation imposing new taxes on natural resources, delay supply for up to 30 days, and could force a joint sitting of the House of Commons and the Senate by defeating other legislation. A government which wants its legislation passed in a timely fashion will have to take into consideration the views of the Senate.

Motorists targeted in seat belt blitz

On Saturday, police across Canada carried out a special 24-hour traffic enforcement program called Operation Impact. The objective of the program was to increase the use of seatbelts and child restraints.

Since 1950, over 172,000 Canadians have died in traffic collisions in Canada. With each passing year an additional 4,000 fatalities are added to the total.

Of all the possible countermeasure programs that can be implemented, none can approach the life saving value of seat belts and child restraints. In 1989 for example, 74 percent of Canadians were wearing seat belts. If the usage rate had been 95 percent, over 500 lives would have been saved.

Vehicles today are designed with safety features which attempt to ensure vehicle occupants are left with a life-space in the passenger compartment after a collision. For unrestrained occupants, deaths and injuries occur when they hit something inside the passenger compartment; something inside the passenger compartment hits them; or they are ejected.

Each year about 70 children under the age of five die, and 4,000 more are injured as passengers in motor vehicles because they are not properly restrained in child safety seats. Sometimes an unrestrained adult can crush a child.

The air bag is not a magic solution to the problem. It is a supplemental system that must be used with the lap and shoulder belt. The air bag aids occupants in a frontal collision but does nothing for angled impacts, rear collisions or roll overs.

The seat belt wearing rate in Canada in 1991 was 85 percent.

Efforts are underway in all provinces and territories to achieve a 95 percent occupant restraint wearing rate achieved by the end of 1995.

Air Force provides help for asthmatic children

When a child has asthma, the whole family must learn to cope. The Lung Association can help.

Air Force, a program for asthmatic children and their parents is being held on Saturday, October 17 at the Fire Hall in Haliburton Village.

Air Force is an educational program that has two main aims. One is to teach the children self-management skills so that they can take more responsibility for managing their own asthma. The other aim is to provide parents with the knowledge and skills to help them deal more effectively with asthma.

This program is for children 6 to 12 years of age. Brothers and sisters are also welcome if they are within that age range or older. The fee for Air Force is $20 per family, paid in advance. The program will run from 9 a.m. to approximately 3:30 p.m. with a break for a brown bag lunch. Beverages provided.

To register, call the Lung Association at 1-324-6497 or forward the fee, along with name, address and telephone number to: The Lung Association, 12 King St., Lindsay, K9V 1C5.

If your child has asthma, it can be very frightening for him.

Air Force provides an opportunity to make this condition a little less frightening.

Lions mark 75th world anniversary

Lions Club International is celebrating 75 years of service.

The Lions are the largest service organization in the world. There are 40,824 Lions Clubs in 177 countries and areas throughout the world. As of April 30, 1992, there were 1,412,836 men and women members of this great organization.

At the Lions bingo on Thursday, September 3, Reverend Brian Parker accepted several cases of food for the Minden Food Bank. As well, bingo Chairman Tom Gardner presented a $100 cheque for the purchase of fresh fruit, vegetables and meat. Thanks to all the people who play the early bird game each week which makes these donations possible.

On Wednesday, September 9, Minden Lions had their first meeting in the Community Centre. There was a

For Your Service

by Maurice Boyd

100% membership turnout for another delicious dinner by Lion chef Hugh MacIntyre. The Community Centre will be the Lions new home for 1992/93.

Lion Daryl Moore, Region Chairman for District A-16, introduced a Lions information booth at the 1992 Plowing Match held in Lindsay from September 14 to 19. This booth was represented by Lions Clubs from Haliburton, Victoria and Durham Counties. Much interest was shown by the visitors to the Plowing Match.

On Saturday, October 3, the Lioness's held their second successful pie sale. If you missed getting one of these delicious pies watch for the next sale. All proceeds from this event go to the Lioness's community projects.

The Lionesses wish to thank everyone for the support shown for the third annual Rubber Ducky Race on Saturday, September 5. Congratulations to duck #407 picked by Garry Foster who is $300 richer. Pris Downs of Concord, Ontario won $200 with duck #318 and Karena MacMillan got $100 for her duck, #260 third prize.

Lois Boice of Haliburton is the proud owner of the afghan raffled off on the same day as the ducky race. Thanks to everyone who purchased a ticket on this draw.

I would like to remind everyone of the Lions bingo every Thursday at the Community Centre. Early bird game at 7 p.m. being in support of the Minden Food Bank.

Santa Claus Parade, Chairman Lion Art Hosken, says watch The Times for your float entry form. Parade day is Saturday, November 28. Start time is 2 p.m.

Ladies interested in Lioness information may call President Maureen Boeckstyn at 286-2604.

The spring payment equals 50% of the previous year's entitlement and is paid automatically without application. The fall payment is based on an application form which is mailed automatically to most Old Age Security recipients. If you have not received your application for the fall portion of the 1992 rebate, contact your nearest Information Centre for assistance.

Due to new legislation this will change. Effective January 1, 1993, eligible seniors will apply for the property tax and sales tax credits through their annual income tax return.
